G. Bettini

Bettini Micro-Phonograph

A True Mirror of Sound.

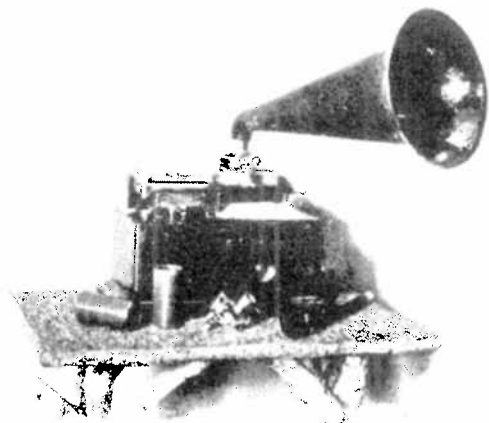

A MACHINE with a soul, able to awake and perpetuate all the pleasantest and strongest emotions of life, will revive the past and bring back the absent. The most truthful teacher and guide for musicians, singers, elocutionists, speakers, preachers, students of dramatic art, etc.

Carrying vocal messages to all parts of the world, and preserving the same for posterity.

The most agreeable companion in solitude, and a great entertainer for invalids; putting the favorite songs, instruments, and the most famous artists at your instant command.

Bettini Phonograph Speed Indicator.

The average speed used for making records is about 120 revolutions a minute. In order to obtain the best and most natural reproduction of sound, it is absolutely necessary to have the recorded cylinder revolving during its reproduction at the same speed at which the record was taken. For this purpose we offer the

From the New York Evening Telegram :

* * * * Lieutenant Bettini has a most interesting laboratory in this city, and he has been much favored by the great European artists that have been heard in public in this country, both on the dramatic and operatic stage. I spent a delightful afternoon in his laboratory yesterday, and was astounded to hear in turn a reproduction, perfect in every detail, of the voices of these great artists : Mmes. Calve, Melba and Nordica ; Mm. Tamagno, Lasalle, P. Plancon, Maurel and Signori Ancona, Nicolini and Campanini, Tomaso Salvini, Coquelin, Sarah Bernhardt, Ellen Terry, Lillie Langtry, Mme. Reine, and her leading man, M. Maury, have each spoken into the Bettini Phonograph. Ex-President Benjamin Harrison and "Mark Twain" have each left a record of their voices behind them. * * *

MME. SARAH BERNHARDT AT THE BETTINI
MICRO-PHONOGRAPH.

We have in our collection many records from celebrated artists, not mentioned in this catalogue, and we are constantly adding new ones.

Supplementary lists will be issued from time to time and mailed to our customers at their request.
